JUSTICE JOHN HAS RUSHING BUSINESS

W. L. Crowder said he couldn't tell a lie, and that he was drunk when the policeman saw him.

"Can't tell a lie!" blurted out the court, as he fell limp and perspiring back into his chair.

"No, sir. That is, I have never lied yet. I was drunk. I can't say I want."

Charles Crowder, with all the innocence of a new-born babe.

"When you get home, and I am going to tell you real quick, you send me a photograph of yourself. I wish it to adorn my sanctum. In my long and varied career this is the first time I have ever seen a man who couldn't lie. It strikes me that I have heard of such a man, and I don't I recollect something about a cherry tree. In your countenance at this time I fancy I can see the waving branches of that cherry tree."

"If there is any other man in this vast audience who can't tell a lie, will he please stand?"

Every seat in the room was instantly taken.

Ellen Coles said she was drunk, and she paid $2.50.

Thomas Delaney was held for ten days for being a deserter from the fleetship "Franklin."

James Lewis, alias James Dager, was turned over to Officer Eubank, of Hen-rico county, upon a charge of cutting wire from the Seven Pines line.

Mary Childs out George Coles, an aged darky, very seriously, and will have to explain to a jury her reasons.

Charles Harris, a little stick of nicotine, said another little negro hit him on the "head" with a cymbaling. They were dismissed.

Bill Powell said she didn't see "the locomotive" when she cussed. She paid $2.50 for not observing her surroundings.

W. H. Smith paid $10 for beating Estelle Hammie.

Annie Goode was charged with assaulting Rosa Jenkins, but Rosa repented, and each paid the costs.

James Billups paid $2.50 for trespassing upon the property of Jerome Skemes.

Emmett White paid $2.50 for cursing in the market, and Fannie Carter was assessed $2.50 for trespassing on the property of Mr. C. A. Chapman.

William Tinsley refused Officer Thurman when he was arrested for being disorderly and was fined $2.50.

Elia White and Thomas Johnson were charged with cursing and threatening Mr. E. Manning. Elia was fined $5 and Johnson, in addition to being fined this amount for being disorderly, was fined $100 for carrying a concealed weapon, and placed under $300 security for twelve months.

Henry Smith was assessed $30 for biting a woman.

William Routien said he would get out of town if allowed to do so. He started off with a long line of talk about how good he would be, and was only stopped by the court saying "ten cents."

"Sir!" exclaimed William.

Wait and watch for the Forced Sale. It will be to your interest.

CASINO SERVICE FREE ATTENDED

Crowds in Playhouse Listened to Interesting Sermon.

PASTOR STEALEY TO LEAVE

Captain Rogers Resigns—Was Fourteen Years Sunday School Superintendent.

From the brilliantly lighted Casino at Reservoir Park Sunday night there came sounds of praises as many voices joined in the singing of familiar Gospel hymns, and many people who had gone to the Park to get a breath of fresh air and to enjoy the breezes from the lake, turned their steps towards the large building that is a theatre every other night in the week. A dozen or more zealous young men had been mingling with the crowds for more than an hour distributing cards which announced that at 8:30 evangelical services under the auspices of the Baptist Council of Richmond and Manchester would begin. A quarter of an hour before the time the cars gave for the beginning of the service, the Casino was comfortably filled, between five and six hundred people having been seated. A majority of the women present came without their hats and the men wore negligee outfits and everybody seemed to be making themselves comfortable.

The members of the Leigh Street Baptist Church choir were seated on the stage just to the side of the improvised pulpit and very stirring music was rendered, the entire congregation joining in the singing of the familiar hymns.

Rev. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, the president of the council and pastor of the Leigh Street Baptist Church, preached an able and very impressive sermon on the text, "When He Came to Himself," a sentence taken from the parable of the Prodigal Son. The large congregation gave strict attention to the able appeal of the minister, and much interest was manifested. There was one conversion.

The plan of the service, by the Baptist Council, three services will be held every Sunday night through July and August. They will be under the management of the pastor and members of one of the Baptist churches in the city each night. Sunday night they were in charge of the Leigh Street congregation and that church's pastor, Rev. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, the Second Baptist Church people will have charge, and the sermon will be by Rev. Dr. R. J. Willingham, the secretary of the Foreign Mission Board.

Accepts Resignation.

At a meeting of the congregation of Broadview Memorial Church Sunday morning, the board of deacons handed in its report in regard to the resignation of the pastor, Rev. C. P. Stealey.

The board had used every inducement possible in endeavoring to have Mr. Stealey withdraw his resignation, but the latter was firm in his new course.

Divine will called him to another field. The resignation was accepted, and resolutions were drawn up expressing the deep regret of the congregation in having to give up so valuable a pastor.

The resignation is to take place on July 15th. Mr. Stealey will take a few weeks rest before assuming his new charge at West Washington Baptist Church.

Captain Rogers Resigns.

Captain George M. Rogers, after having been for fourteen years superintendent of the Sunday school at Broadview Memorial Church, tendered his resignation last Sunday morning. His resignation was received with deep regret by the members, for Captain Rogers has done able and efficient service, and has performed faithfully the duties of his position.

A quarterly conference will be held this week to elect a successor to Captain Rogers.

Before the Sunday school adjourned Mr. W. M. Whitlow arose, and with a few appropriate remarks presented the resignation of Captain Rogers.

As a token of the love and esteem felt for him by the officers and pupils of the school, The medal was inscribed as follows: "George M. Rogers, Faithful Services; Denny Street Methodist Sunday School, 1891 to 1905."

Notes From the Churches.

In the Baptist pastors' conference yesterday the secretary, Rev. W. W. Sisk, an expression of the deep regrets of his fellow ministers that he has left the community, and that they have severed his connection with the conference.

Rev. Mr. McDaniel offered a resolution expressing regrets that Rev. W. W. Sisk was leaving the conference, and his appreciation of him as an officer of the conference and as a Christian minister, and commending him to the love and confidence of the people among whom he will live in Washington.

Dr. A. Bagby was appointed to write a letter to the conference of the churches of the churches which have so thoroughly and kindly granted their pastor's vacation, supplying their pulpits during the absence, and to express their appreciation of the means to cover all expenses.

Mr. Hutson was overwhelmed with surprise and gratitude Sunday when he was showered on him their love and sympathy, bidding him an affectionate adieu and God-speed on his journey.

Dr. Pollard addressed the meeting, saying that he was glad to be in the conference again; that he is likely to make his home in Richmond.

Rev. J. W. Durham will supply for the Grace Street Baptist Church during July and August.

Rev. John Dickinson, of Alabama, will supply for the First Baptist Church through July and August.

The conference adjourned to meet Monday for the first Sunday in September, in the Methodist ministers' meeting, Rev. R. M. Maxey, in the absence of the president, was called to the chair.

The routine of business was dispatched and the ministers handed in their reports of the week's progress as work. The president was authorized to draw up a plan to supply the chapel at the Soldiers' Home with ministerial service on the afternoon of second Sundays.

Rev. J. K. Cooke, of Hempstead, L. I., presided in St. Paul's Episcopal Church Sunday.

Rev. Dr. John Moncreux and his family will remain in Richmond for the greater part of the summer. They will not leave the city until later and will be absent for only a short while.

Rev. Moncreux preached in Epiphany Church Sunday.

Rev. Thomas Semmes preached in Monumental Church.

Bishop Gibson Returns.

Bishop Gibson has returned from Matthews and will leave shortly to join his family at Orkney Springs.

Rev. Ous Meade, of Christ Church, is inaugurating a series of tent meetings at Venable and Twenty-fourth Streets. Meetings will be held every evening and night.

Rev. R. B. Eggleston has left for New York and will sail to-morrow for Europe.

UNDERWRITERS MEET.

Local Association Elects Delegates to National Organization.

The Richmond Underwriters' Association held an enthusiastic meeting yesterday at the Commercial Hotel. A delightful luncheon was served during the meeting. An interesting feature was the election of the delegation to the national association to be held in Hartford in September.

The following were elected: Blosingame, South-Atlantic; Midyette, Fidelity; Williamsburg, Sun Life; Hardwick; Aetna; Tabb, Travelers.

Alternates—Bahlke, Hall, Adams, Picasanti, Drewry.

Mr. W. B. Freeman, of New York Life, was nominated a member of the National Executive Committee.

Dr. Davis, Medical Director of Union Central Life Insurance Company, was a visitor and made an interesting address.

The next meeting will occur in October.

Tribly Very Popular.

Although the weather has been cool, the "Tribly" flier to the seashore over the Norfolk and Virginia Beach Railway was comfortably filled, and the run each way was quick and enjoyable.

Under the efficient management of Mr. J. E. Wagner and others these "Triblys" are recognized as one of the most pleasant features of the summer season. Passengers go through to Virginia Beach without change and have hours to spend at that popular resort.

Old Case to Be Retried.

In the Law and Equity Court to-day the case of Mrs. Katharine C. Wilson against the Richmond Theatre Company, in which the $15,000 for damages will be heard. The case is an old one and at one time there was a hung jury. A car of the company struck a carriage, in which the complainant was sitting, and she claims damages in the amount named.

Is Getting Along Nicely.

Mr. Hampton Stewart Jones, clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, was reported yesterday to be doing well. He is still at the Virginia Hospital, but hopes to be able to be sent to his home on Thursday or Friday.

VARIED SIGHTS AT LITTLE CONEY

Busy Scenes at Reservoir Park on Sunday Afternoon.

WORLDLINESS AND RELIGION

These Are Strangely Mixed. "Barkers" and Preachers "Try Conclusions."

Reservoir Park on Sunday afternoon is picturesque. All sorts and conditions of men and women, whom an unkind fate has kept in the heat of town, escape for a few hours to the groves and flowers of the pleasure resort on the lake and either sit upon the benches to watch the passing show or become part of the passing show for the benefit of the wide eyed loungers.

If there is a strange commingling of humanity, no less is there a strange admixture of attractions, for one is reminded of the lion and the lamb lying down together.

The brilliant steam piano, with its undying stream of popular songs, is accompanied by the small parlor organ of the Y. M. C. A. choir that lifts up its united voice on the south lawn, while the cornet of the evangelist mingles its Moody and Sanky hymn with the shrill whistle of the pleasure launches carrying their little crowds about the lake. The voice of the exhorter earnest and insistent in its wall of the hereafter is no more convincing than the horrid cry of the "barker," who promises all the mysteries and delights of heaven and earth for the small sum of ten cents.

The soda water fountains, the salt water luff, the booths presided over by the descendants of the Casars, all of great business. Hoky-poky disappears before the onslaught of the holiday crowd and pink lemonade vanishes like mist before the morning. Peanuts become a past time, while rank rangers remain always present. It is a noticeable phase of the Sunday sainters that all the "bloody" on parade adorn their features with huge, mysterious looking figures from which great volumes of smoke proceed, causing the youths to resemble human steam engines.

Wears Gay Colors.

Very pronounced raiment also marks the true sport. The headgear is wide of brim and has jaunty indentations about the crown; neckties are flowing and gaudy, and caps are split up the back until the very neck is in danger; trousers are a la Beau Brummel, so large in the leg and so tight at the foot that they resemble a pair of funnels, while the assortment of socks are of such alarming patterns that little children stand enraptured and enthralled.

The fashions find most favor in the eyes of beholders are those who gladden their locks with immense bows of any colored ribbon. Tight shoes seem also to be an essential article of dress for most of those of debonaire appearance have the engaging limp that tells the story of a large, flat foot in a small, narrow shoe.

The men, too, tell the story of the view, of both the paraders and the benches, and so great is the assortment that even the most fastidious should be pleased.

As a tall, bony maiden dressed in resplendent checks and walking like a kangaroo with her feet puffed by a "dead game sport," who knew "what was what," remarked with admiration: "She's the real thing, and she's doing the swellest Franklin Street walk I've seen in the park."

A few of the nobility graced the occasion in motor cars, but the decorated family horse was more in evidence; the kind that drag a wagon on week days and rest up by dragging the family all day Sunday.

Please the President.

Within the vehicle sits padre familias, behind a "beaver," his head adorned with a "beaver" and a massive watch chain moored across his "vest," while behind, with some seven or eight of the children, is mater familias, in all the glory of white dress, flowered hat and royal motherhood. It's a sight that would bring tears of joy to the spectacle blind eyes of the "anti-race suicide" President.

To vary the monotony, a "drunk," endeavoring to attract attention, shows the silver-tongued evangelist, lifts up his voice in exhortation and is "pitched." Alas the fickle crowd who listened coldly to the "drunk" in freedom, press close around and almost smother him in captivity.

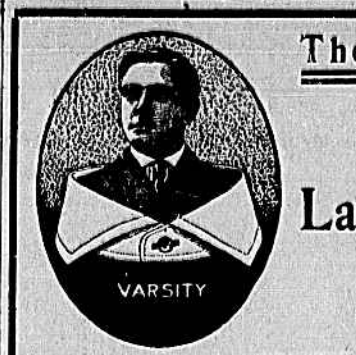

When the patrol wagon arrives all resorts are vacant for the entire morning spectacle of a husky cop lugging a bloated-eyed booze artist into Justice John's coupe.

A pale-faced man meanders through the throng, handing out tracts with uncertain success, followed by a ragged young "dago," selling peanuts and chewing gum, and a "drunk" who is "pitched" by the "one was taken and the other left."

All the while the small, hymn-emitting organ, the Moody and Sanky cornet, the steam piano, with its "Hot Time in the Old Town and Kinda Blue," the "hoot" of the motor cars and the shrill whistle of the launches on the lake, join the voice of the iron-tongued preacher, who tells the story of a "simple life." It is interesting.

About the Canary Islands.

To-night at the Mission Tabernacle, No. 704 East Grace Street, there is to be a "simple life."
